BE PART OF THE CONVERSATION DRIVING WISCONSIN AGRICULTURE

The Wisconsin Corn•Soy Expo is where growers come to learn, connect and make decisions for the year ahead. Hosted by the Wisconsin Soybean Association and Wisconsin Corn Association, the Expo brings more than 1,200 corn and soybean growers, agribusiness professionals and industry leaders to Wisconsin Dells for two days of education, networking, association meetings and a packed trade show floor.

For exhibitors and sponsors, this is more than booth space. It is face time with the farmers, decision-makers and partners who shape Wisconsin agriculture.

Whether your company works in seed, crop protection, equipment, precision technology, finance, conservation, transportation, biofuels, grain handling or another part of the ag economy, the Corn•Soy Expo gives you a direct path to the growers you want to reach.

Exhibitor space and sponsorship opportunities are limited. Join us in 2027 and put your company in front of one of the strongest grower audiences in the Midwest.

Sincerely,

The Wisconsin Corn•Soy Committee

Why It Matters

The Expo lands at the right time of year: after harvest, before planting and during the window when growers are thinking about the products, services and relationships that will shape their next season.

WHY EXHIBIT?

Get in front of growers before the season starts

Farmers do not come to the Wisconsin Corn•Soy Expo to wander. They come with questions, challenges and plans for the year ahead. That makes the trade show floor one of the most valuable places to be.

Exhibiting gives your company a chance to:

- Connect directly with corn and soybean growers
- Launch new products, services or programs
- Strengthen relationships with existing customers
- Generate qualified leads in a concentrated two-day window
- Build visibility with Wisconsin's ag community
- Show support for the state's corn and soybean growers
- Stand alongside the companies and organizations helping move agriculture forward
- The Expo offers something many marketing channels cannot: real conversations with real growers in a setting built around farm business.

WHO YOU'LL REACH

A focused audience with buying influence

The Wisconsin Corn•Soy Expo draws a high-value audience from across the state and region, including:

- Corn and soybean growers
- Farm owners and operators
- Crop consultants and agronomists
- Ag retailers and input suppliers
- Equipment and technology providers
- Lenders, insurers and financial service professionals
- Conservation and sustainability partners
- Commodity association leaders
- Media and agricultural communicators
- Industry partners serving Wisconsin agriculture

This is an audience that invests their own money to attend the show. They understand agriculture, ask good questions and value relationships. If your company serves growers, the Corn•Soy Expo puts you in the right room.

SPONSORSHIPS THAT PUT YOUR BRAND TO WORK

A sponsorship at the Wisconsin Corn•Soy Expo does more than place your logo on a sign. It connects your company to one of Wisconsin agriculture's signature events and shows growers that you support the organizations working on their behalf.

Sponsorships help create the experience attendees expect: strong speakers, meaningful networking, grower-focused programming and a professional trade show environment.

Sponsors receive valuable visibility before, during and after the event, with opportunities tied to high-traffic moments, attendee engagement and brand recognition.

Whether your goal is awareness, hospitality, lead generation or industry goodwill, we can help build a sponsorship package that fits your company's goals.

Suggested Callout

Your sponsorship supports more than an event. It supports Wisconsin corn and soybean growers.

YOUR BOOTH IS MORE THAN A DISPLAY

The best trade show conversations happen when growers can ask questions, compare options and talk directly with the people behind a product or service.

That is what the Wisconsin Corn•Soy Expo trade show floor is built for.

With more than 120 companies represented, the Expo gives attendees a broad look at the tools, technology, ideas and partnerships available to their farms. For exhibitors, it creates a high-energy environment where companies can meet growers, reconnect with customers and build new relationships.

Booth space is limited and assigned based on availability. Early registration gives your company the best chance to secure a preferred location.
